GENEALOGICAL RECORD OF THE MARSH FAMILY
OF SOUTHERN INDIANA

This Genealogy of the Marsh Family of Southern Indiana is presented after a year's hard, but very enjoyable, work by William E. Marsh, No. 510 in this record. The work was begun ten years ago by my father, James Newton Marsh, No. 43, who left his data to me with the request that I would complete and publish it. I took up the work a year ago and after a voluminous correspondence with nearly every living adult member of the family, many of whom have gone to a great deal of trouble to help in the work, I have been able, I believe, to get practically full details about every member of the family save one or two from whom repeated letters brought no replies. Barring typographical errors, I believe my data is correct in every detail, after James Marsh moved to Indiana.

I want to urgently request that every one report to me any errors found in this edition and any deaths, births or marriages—or divorces—as they occur. I will keep the data up to date, so that a revised edition will be possible, in later years.

The Reddington neighborhood in Jackson county, Indiana, is still the home of perhaps half the living members of the family, although others have scattered to all parts of the country. A good many stick to the old family trade of farmer. None have attained wealth or great prominence but all are good, substantial citizens in their communities and many are comfortably well off. The first member of the family, I believe, is Samuel Marsh, No. 32, who built the Old Homestead on Rock Creek (later starting married life in a log cabin) which was the recognized show place of the township, the headquarters for all public movements, and the home of the First Gentleman of Jackson County, prosperous farmer, country squire, willing helper and adviser in every man's troubles and even occasionally first aid physician, finally being honored by a term in the Indiana Legislature.

Four rooms of the old Marsh Homestead still stand on Rock Creek, as shown in our photo, these being the front of the house. Under the eaves can still be seen the board placed there when it was built on which Samuel Marsh painted "1852." We also show a sketch of the original first floor plan, drawn by Charles P. Marsh, No. 48, youngest son of Samuel.

For convenience, I have adopted a numbering scheme by which members of each generation are numbered consecutively, preceded by the number of the generation. Thus James Marsh is No. 32, which places him as the second child in the second generation, and: Bobbie Dan Greene, No. 71, is in the seventh generation and the first child of the first child back to the first generation.

In the work done by my father, he listed a number of persons whom he was not able to fit into the records. I have been able to dispose of all of these but one, and none of the living relatives remember him and the name does not appear in any family Bible. The name is "James R. Marsh, born Aug. 13, 1860, died Jan. 30, 1878."

There is no grave at Reddington marked with this name. If any one is able to recall anything about this boy who lived to be nine years old, I would like to know it.

On the date of the publication of this Genealogy, Dec. 15, 1926, the oldest living member of the family is No. 47, Emily Barriger, aged 79, with No. 421, Emma Murray, aged 78, and No. 48, Charles P. Marsh, aged 74, in second and third places. The record of longevity for the family is held by the brothers, No 42, Wm. J. Marsh and No. 43, James N. Marsh, each of whom passed 84, the former leading by six months. The youngest member of the family reported to me is No. 72, Sylvia Ann Greene, born Nov. 5, 1936. There are living at this date 193 descendents of James Marsh and Elizabeth Dunn, 79 dead.

No 416, Lucebra Marsh—"Sebe"—was the only member of the family to meet a violent death, barring several others which were accidental. Sebe was murdered by a burglar he caught in his home at Seymour on the night of Jan. 1, 1932. My father bringing the news of this deed to our home is one of the sharpest memories of my early childhood. This murderer was never apprehended although members of the family then living professed to have pretty definite opinions on the matter.

Family life has been pretty steady with the Marsh's, the number of divorces being much less than in the population generally. Second marriages are recorded several times, and in one or two cases three. Samuel Marsh, according to his own record, was married four times.

According to the records in Samuel Marsh's Bible, written by himself, his first wife, Ann Daugherty died Jan. —, 1839. Then he records that he was married in 1839 to Zenith M. Jones and on Nov. 7, 1839 to Minerva Brown. He does not dispose of his second marriage at all and some of the older living members of the family remember nothing of the lady while others think they recall that the marriage was annuled. I would be glad to clear up this matter if any one can shed any light on it.

Records of the earlier generations show with tragic frequency the birth and death of children on the same day or in a few weeks. The progress in medical care is reflected in that the last case of early death out ten or fifteen years back. Only two of the seventh generation have died. Twins have appeared four or five times, but not in a successive line. The largest family groups are the 29 descendents of No. 414, Robert D. Marsh, and the 31 of No. 418, Nancy Marsh Gilbert.

During the past fifty years repeated attempts have been made by various members of the family to trace our European origin. The results have been uncertain and almost negligible. I will review these briefly and then offer what I believe to be nearest to facts that discovered records reveal.

The first work on this Genealogy, done by J. N. Marsh indicated that the American family was founded by "——— Marsh (about 1750 to 1810) believed to have been born at sea." This data, I think was from the old Samuel Marsh family Bible. A History of Bartholomew and Jackson Counties, Indiana, published in 1904, by B. F. Bowen, who got most of his information I believe from Emily Marsh Barriger and Emma Marsh Murray, states that the progenitor was William Marsh, born in Ireland, who emigrated to Culpepper County, Virginia, and thence to Harrison County, Kentucky, and was the father of James, whom we know to be the founder of the Indiana family. My own father, James Newton Marsh, always believed we originated in Scotland, and not Ireland.

The evidence to which I give most credence is from the still existing records in the Harrison County, Kentucky, courthouse, which have been very kindly searched and copied by Miss Margaret Duffy of Cynthiana. There is still a large colony of Marshes in Harrison county, of whom no attempt is made to list in this Indiana Genealogy.

Perrin's History of Scott, Harrison and Bourbon Counties has articles on several of the family which record that one of the founders came from Maryland instead of Virginia and was named Beal Marsh (wife was Eleanor Corbin) and another, probably a brother of Beal, was named Thomas and was born near Baltimore, Maryland. It seems probable that one of these brought with him a son named Samuel. This Samuel left a widow named Margaret who took out letters of administration on his estate in 1814, which checks fairly well with the 1810 date of his supposed death as given in the Samuel Marsh Bible. On Jan. 13, 1817 "the heirs of Samuel Marsh" sold a farm on Richland Creek to one James Blackburn. From this list of heirs and records of marriage licenses issued to corresponding names, I have constructed a probable list of children of this Samuel Marsh. I am numbering only those listed in the Samuel Marsh Bible, leaving the others "(?)."

With each group are given addresses that have come to me of all adult members of the family. Unmarried children are assumed to live with parents. All addresses in Indiana unless stated.
